

I was playing with strong and light marks when I realised that I had produced a mythical figure. With rabbit and bird. And realise that my fave rite story lines both as a grown up and a child was those tales that told a mythical tale. That took us away from firm reality to another imagining. And indeed Jane Austin played with strong and light imaginings.

Pammy Hull